

CV Paula García Castañón

Her professional career has been entirely developed in the health area, as Medical Physicist in the areas of Diagnostic Radiology, Nuclear Medicine, Radiotherapy and Radiation Protection.

Since 2008 she works at the Medical Physics and Radiation Protection Department of University Hospital La Princesa in Madrid (Spain).

Obtained her Medical Physics qualification at University Hospital Marqués de Valdecilla (Santander, Spain) in 2006, and a Degree in Theoretical Physics in 2001 at Universidad Autónoma of Madrid.

Several international and national publications and communications in in the areas of Diagnostic radiology, Interventional Radiology, Nuclear Medicine and Radiation Protection in Medicine.

Teaching experience in nuclear medicine, diagnostic radiology and radiation protection. Tutor of Medical Physics Trainees and also of students from degrees of Physics and Biomedical Engineering.

Member of Spanish Society of Medical Physics and Spanish Society of Radiation Protection.